

Paintbrush

Castilleja spp.
Broomrape Family

- A beautiful accent plant because of its striking red color
- Medicinally used by Native Americans and also used as a paint brush
- Partially parasitic, acquiring some of its water and nutrients from a host plant
- Red “flowers” are actually modified leaves called “bracts”

