

Photo Credit: Peter Lesica

Rocky Mountain Juniper

Juniperus scopulorum
Cedar Family

- Used in single row windbreaks and buffer strips where medium height is desired
- Trees are slow-growing and can tolerate harsh drought conditions
- Seeds germinate after they have passed through the digestive tract of a bird or animal
- Is a dioecious species (has male flowers on one tree and female flowers and fruit on another)